WHY WE RECOMMEND OUR SIGNATURE LINE

Our Signature product line is our most recommended option, designed for clients who want a highly guided, hands-on experience from concept to completion. This line includes personalized design consultations, detailed 3D renderings, and extensive customization options, ensuring every detail aligns with your vision, brand, and space requirements.

Modular Design

Our booths use modular construction, so you can evolve your space without starting from scratch. When you're ready for a refresh or a completely new aesthetic, there's no need to replace the entire unit; we can update a single component to transform the overall look.

More Cost-Effective

Replacing individual components is significantly more affordable than fully reupholstering an entire booth. That's why our booths are designed with easily disassembled, modular parts, so you can update worn or outdated sections without the expense and downtime of a complete overhaul.

RESTAURANT & HOSPITALITY PLANNING

Here are some helpful considerations when budgeting and designing for a restaurant or hospitality setting. A well-planned layout should balance seating capacity, guest comfort, and efficient traffic flow to maximize both revenue and experience. Based on these factors, a 200-seat restaurant is most effectively designed with approximately 30–40 double booths as core seating, 15–25 single booths for flexibility, and the remaining seats allocated to tables or bar seating depending on the concept.

Seating Capacity & Planning

- 24" per person is the industry standard for booth seating.
- Ensure tables match seating capacity (e.g., 24"–30" deep per side).
- Casual Dining typically requires 12-15 sq ft per seat.
- Full Service Dining typically requires 15-18 sq ft per seat.
- Deeper seats provide a lounge feel, but provide a less efficient turnover.
- Upright backs provide faster dining turnover, which is better for high-volume concepts.

Clearance & Code Considerations

- Main aisle width should be a minimum of 42"-48".
- Aisles between tables and booths should be a minimum of 30"-36".
- ADA pathways should have a minimum of 36" clear width.
- The space between seated guests should meet a comfortable clearance of 18"-24."
- Maintain clear egress paths to exits.
- At least 5% of seating must be accessible to meet ADA compliance.
